A Message from Ecoverde Homes to the People of Japan

Building the Future Together: The Philippines and Japan

The Philippines is a nation of tremendous potential. With its young and dynamic population, growing economy, continuing urbanization, and increasing demand for quality housing, we believe that the country will continue to offer significant opportunities for sustainable development in the years ahead.

At Ecoverde Homes, we believe that realizing this potential requires more than building houses. It requires strong partnerships, shared values, mutual respect, and a long-term commitment to the communities we serve.

Since 2018, Ecoverde Homes has had the privilege of working with Mr. Nakashima of Ambitious, our valued partner from Japan.

Since 2018

8 Projects • 1,564 Homes

Japan × Philippines

From the beginning, our partnership has been built on mutual understanding and respect. Mr. Nakashima has taken the time to understand Philippine culture, business practices, housing conditions, and our legal and regulatory environment. Rather than simply applying Japanese methods to the Philippines, we have worked together to find approaches that combine Japanese experience and discipline with a genuine understanding of Filipino needs and circumstances.

Like any meaningful long-term partnership, our journey has included challenges. Whenever difficulties arose, however, we returned to the same table, discussed them openly, and worked together toward practical solutions. Through this process, our professional relationship has developed into a partnership founded on trust—one that extends beyond differences in nationality, culture, and business practice.

We believe the Philippines and Japan have strengths that complement one another.

The Philippines offers a young and capable workforce, expanding communities, and substantial long-term demand for quality housing. Japan brings generations of experience in technology, quality management, finance, engineering, and disciplined business operations.

By bringing these strengths together, we believe we can create greater and more lasting value—not only for our companies, but more importantly for Filipino families and the communities in which we build.

Together with Mr. Nakashima and our Japanese partners, Ecoverde Homes will continue working toward our vision of providing well-planned, high-quality homes where Filipino families can build secure and fulfilling lives.

We also look forward to developing new relationships with Japanese companies, financial institutions, investors, and other organizations that share our belief in the long-term potential of the Philippines.

Our partnership with Japan has already shown us what can be achieved when people from two countries work together with trust, patience, and a common purpose.

We hope that the years ahead will allow us to deepen that relationship and, together, contribute to an even stronger future for the Philippines and Japan.
